Talking Points for DCI as Statutory Member of NASC

Provide information on the civilian space programs of other countries, including competitive, economic information and future development plans. DCI can add a perspective that did not exist on the previous NASC. The intelligence mandate of the CIA includes economic, industrial, social and political intelligence. In addition we have a world wide mandate for narcotics and terrorism intelligence besides military intelligence. The Secretary of Defense does not represent the Intelligence Community interests; it is the DCI. Since the NASC is given such broad authority: (1) develop comprehensive programs for all agencies, (2) designate and fix responsibility, (3) provide for effective cooperation among all depts and agencies and (5) resolve differences among all agencies; failure to include DCI would constitute a major representational gap in view of the fact that the DCI is a major player in the national space program. In addition, if such a major component of the space program is not a member of the council, the President could choose to play down the signifigance of the	ccitigence	can:
